

NO TRACE FOUND OF KIDNAPPED BOY

Abductors of Little Horace Marvin, Have Disappeared in Thin Air.

STATE HAS OFFERED $2,000

Lad's Father Says He Has Not Offered $20,000 for Child's Return.

DOVER, DEL., March 8.—The first real substantial information that has been given Dr. Marvin in his search for his lost boy, who was kidnapped on Monday, and the first real note of warning to abductors in the State of Delaware has come from the Legislature.

Sitting yesterday morning within eight miles of the spot from whence little Horace Marvin disappeared, with every member present, the Legislature suspended all other business and formed a committee of the whole, recommended and passed a bill, which was turned over to the Governor for signature this morning, appropriating $2,000 for the employment of first-class detectives at once, to be put on the new famous case.

Turned Over Stacks.
To-day there were several new developments. Chief State Detective Hawkins was at the Marvin farm early and insisted on doing what many have wondered had hitherto been neglected. "Before we scour the country any further," he said, "we will go to work on this farm and turn over every straw stack and fodder rick, and be quick about it."

There was no concerted movement, and the detective jumped in his carriage and went to Kitts Hammock, and the neighborhood and got a lot of men, which in a remarkably short time had the ricks and stacks dismantled, tumbled down and raked out the over a space of many yards. Then the detective threw up his hands in despair, jumped in his carriage, hurried to Dover for a square meal, changed carriage and dress and prepared for a midnight expedition somewhere.

Father Joins Search.
Meantime, Dr. Marvin had started out on an excursion of his own, doing some detective work, in which he did not take anybody into counsel. He even did not stop to converse after a warm greeting, with his brother-in-law, Miles Standish, the New England publisher, who met him while driving in the lane, just arriving from New York. Where Dr. Marvin went is not very well known, for he told nobody, but it is believed that he was following the track given him by a clairvoyant this morning. The father of the missing boy is leaving nothing undone that promises to aid in the solution of the mystery.

To this end, at the earnest solicitation of persons in the neighborhood, he has consulted a clairvoyant with some reputation for solving mysteries and delving into the past. The clairvoyant was very much against his inclination, as he takes no stock in clairvoyants; but what he learned has strengthened his belief in the theory that the boy was taken by two strangers. The clairvoyant told the doctor that he saw a tall man wearing a long coat emerge from an old house, seize a little boy (whom he described as being about five years old) and run away with him towards water that was not far from the scene of the abduction.

The Two Strange Men.
This story, to a certain extent, has a relation to one that is now pretty generally believed, to the effect that two strange men are concerned in the kidnapping, and the State detectives are tracing their movements. It was last Sunday morning that these strangers took breakfast at the Capital Hotel in this city. They were not again seen here. About noon on Sunday, however, Mrs. Charles W. Woodall, wife of the former owner of the Marvin farm, saw them going in and out of a hunting lodge on the bay shore owned by Mr. Woodall. Investigation of this lodge to-day showed that it had recently been occupied. It is believed the abductors spent Sunday night there and early Monday morning went to an abandoned barn near the Marvin residence to await an opportunity to seize one of the doctor's children. This opportunity came when little Horace was left alone at a haystack near the barn. These two men are vaguely described as tall and short, the tall man wearing a very long overcoat. With the story in view, and with the influence of the clairvoyant on his mind, it is believed that Dr. Marvin intended spending the day and perhaps night searching for the hut in the woods and the two strange men.

A Strange Sloop.
The latest news that looks like a clue comes from Port Penn. A strange sloop with a black hull passed the port about 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The men in the craft were strangers and their actions excited the suspicions of the natives. They did not land and continued up the river.

I. W. Conard, of Port Penn, closely scrutinized the men, and he can give a good description of each of them. What attracted the attention of the fishermen most was the smallness of the craft, it being unusual for so small a boat to navigate the river and bay at this time of the year on account of the ice.

The authorities have been notified of the appearance of the strange vessel, and Mr. Conard will be asked to furnish a description of the men he saw. It may tally identically with the long and short men hunting ducks out of season, whom Ollie Pleasanton saw roaming about over Meadow Bay Farm.

The report that the doctor had offered a reward of $20,000 is denied by him, he stating that it was his belief that such a move would be wholly inadvisable until all other means to locate the child have been exhausted.

FISHERMAN MAY SOLVE KIDNAPPING

Arrested Charged With Being Implicated in the Abduction of Marvin Child.

WILMINGTON, DEL., March 8.—A man giving the name of John Hart, a fisherman, of Camden, N. J., was arrested at New Castle to-night on suspicion of knowing something of the disappearance of the Marvin child. He has lived for about four months in a hut on the Murkill Creek, near Kitts Hammock. He left in a sloop last Monday morning about 6:30, and passed Kitts Hammock about 8 o'clock, arriving at New Castle on Tuesday. Persons at Kitts Hammock said that when the boat passed there were two persons in the boat. When the boat reached New Castle Hart was the only occupant. Hart will be given a hearing to-morrow.

PORTO RICO WANTS NATIVE SECRETARY

SAN JUAN, P. R., March 8.—The Porto Rican are desirous of having a native of the island appointed secretary of Porto Rico to succeed Regis Henry in succession to Winthrop.

The House of Delegates to-day sent the following message signed by Jose Giege, the Speaker, to President Roosevelt at Washington:

"The House of Delegates unanimously request you to appoint a secretary of Porto Rico from among the natives of Porto Rico, thus giving us an opportunity to demonstrate our ability to self-government. Such an act of justice will be gratefully received by the whole country."

REPORTED 250 FOR FAILURE TO GET LICENSE

Patrolmen of the Second Station yesterday reported 250 citizens who own dogs upon which no license has been paid for this year.

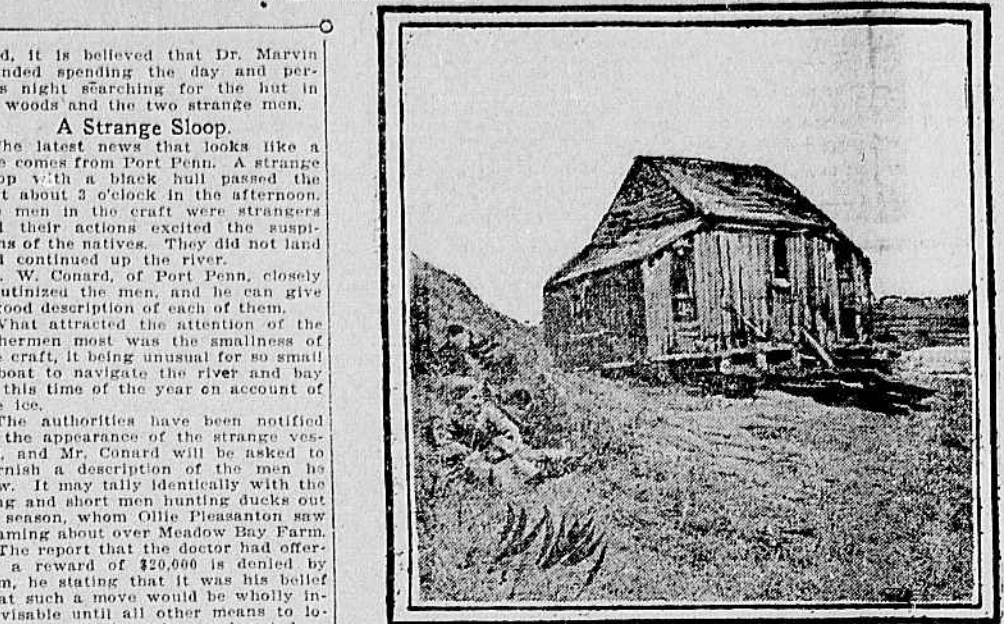

The cemetery will likely do a thriving business next week unless some dog medals are secured.

VERY HOPEFUL OF HIS RECOVERY

Physicians Say That Archie Roosevelt's Condition Is Satisfactory.

IS RESTING COMFORTABLY

President and Mrs. Roosevelt Both Constantly at the Bed-side of the Lad.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 8.—Archie Roosevelt is resting easy to-night and the attending physicians are very hopeful of his recovery. Dr. Alexander Lambert, who was summoned from New York to take charge of the case, has informed the President that, while the patient's condition is encouraging, he is not yet out of danger. Mr. Roosevelt was with his son for more than an hour to-night. In his visits to the sick-room the President takes every precaution against infection.

A consultation was held at the White House.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 8.—The departed canine's carcass struck a show case of a merchant on Main Street and killed the show case. Willie was arrested, and after he had promised to pay for the case he was taken to the police station.

He didn't have the money in his vest pocket, and thereupon walked peacefully to the pen.

Rome Johnson, who was once employed in a grocery store was alleged to have stolen a tub of lard. He was arrested and brought before the One John.

"Did you want to grease that crooked path that eventually leads to the white house on the hill?" asked the man in the high seat, frowning down upon the culprit.

"Ah never done it or tall," said the negro.

The case was not clearly proven and was continued for one week in which to gather evidence.

Isaiah Moody, a negro, was drunk in a negro club, and paid $10 for the fun he had while smashing up furniture.

James Powell thought it was real fun to hit Frank Hill with bricks. Several bricks found a temporary resting-place on Frank's cranium and then he departed. A warrant was printed, and the One John and a little writing separated him from $10.

and of course it's too bad. We called in Gowan's Pneumonia Cure—a fifty-cent size—and our home is happy. They called in the undertaker, and are now regretting.

Say all you want, but taking time by the forelock is the thing. People procrastinate—they put off and then regret. I always keep a bottle of Gowan's in the house and I never worry about croup or colds or pneumonia.

Cherry insurance—why, peace of mind is worth ten times that. Take my advice and get a bottle.

Truly,
JACK.

TRAVELER TO BE PRESERVED

The people of the South revere the memory of Traveler. They came to love the great war horse through their love for his illustrious master. The fact that the bonds of the tireless horse which General Lee rode so long and loved so well are to be preserved will be welcome tidings to many.

The story of Traveler's career, a pathetic account of his death, written by a member of General Lee's family, and an explanation of how his bones are to be preserved and placed on exhibition will be one of the features of the

MABLE SPEAKS ON VALUE OF BOOKS

Distinguished Author Addresses Brilliant Audience at the Woman's Club.

MADE REFERENCE TO LEE

Great Books Feed Fountain of Life and Keep Men Young, He Says.

A large and brilliant company assembled last night at the Woman's Club to hear a lecture by Dr. Hamilton W. Mable on "What Great Books Give Us." Dr. Mable came at the invitation of the Richmond Training school for Kindergarten teachers, and was presented by Mr. V. S. Copeland, chairman of the board of trustees of that institution. On the stage with the speaker were Dr. James Nelson, Dr. Robert Frazier, Mr. J. Alston Cabell and Mr. Edward V. Valentine.

The rooms were crowded to their full capacity, and Dr. Mable must have been inspired by the engrossed attention of his cultured audience.

In the beginning he made a brief reference to kindergarten work, saying that it was the education of the imagination, and was peculiarly adapted to the education of the child. He said that the education of the child did not consist in putting something into the child, but in liberating its spirit. In this connection he spoke of the two lives that all have—the life that is seen and the invisible life, which depended upon its background. Employing the life of General Lee as an example, he said that his invisible life had for its background devotion to duty, which was expressed in the life that was seen.

Back to the Book.

With these introductory remarks he asked what was the greatest thing which man had made, and after telling of the greatest of man's achievements, he said that all must come back at last to the book, such a little volume, for example as King Lear, for through it one can trace everything—mechanical art, language, thought, life. All such books are as so many leaves torn out of the book of the human race. "They are as so many quotations from your life and mine."

The true author is a genius, and genius is dependent on environment. The genius of Homer was out of the expression of the genius of the Greek race. Shakespeare had the whole world behind him and drew upon his history for his dramas, bringing the dead to life and making them move and speak.

Coming then to speak specifically of what the great books give us, he said that the first of their gifts was vitality and the joy and zest that proceed therefrom. "God made us all young," he said, "it is voluntary, he declared, "we renew our youth and keep young in soul by having companionship with the great books. The spirit is young, and the great books feed the fountains of life. Vitality and freshness are the qualities of all great literature."

"Books renew our idealism. There is but one fundamental question for Americans, and that is, whether or not they are going to keep their souls alive. Idealism is not a dreamy vision. It is simply the real and the ideal. The only honest man is the idealist, for no man is honest save the man who puts into his words the best that he has in him."

There are two kinds of illusions—the mirage of the desert which is a mirage, and the mirage of the clouds—clouds which move not, for the strength of the hills of God are within them."

After the lecture Dr. Mable held an informal reception, and many came forward to thank him for the great pleasure and instruction they had in hearing his scholarly discourse.

"TOWN TOPICS" AND "SMART SET" BURNED

NEW YORK, March 8.—The four-story building occupied by William Green, a printer, from whose presses "Smart Set" and "Town Topics" were printed, was burned to-night, causing a loss of about $300,000.

Seventy-five girls were working in the place when the fire was discovered in the stereotyping department on the fourth floor. All escaped without injury.

The plant was located on West Forty-third Street, and the fire was in dangerous proximity to gas tanks of the Consolidated Gas Company. The firemen turned several streams of water into the air in such a way as to form a water curtain between the blaze and the tanks, until the two million cubic feet of gas which the four tanks contained could be drawn into reservoirs on West Sixty-fifth Street.

It is probable that it will be urged in the defense of the American people that the defense of the American people have obtained this concession that they were not aware of these conditions, which have grown up under the administration of Leopold, although they have knowledge and under the authority of the Belgian monarch, American citizens have lent themselves for purely mercenary motives to the continuance of a most frightful condition of affairs in this bright country.

Morgan maintains that this is ample ground for asking the information he seeks to obtain.

But it is not so generally known, probably, that King Leopold has no more right to grant a concession affecting the rubber forests of the Congo country than to grant one to the forests of Liberia, which the civilized nations of the world dedicated to free Africans of the United States and other countries as a home and a haven.

Leopold has assumed absolute dominion over the country of the Congo, and for money gain has sold concessions and allowed the perpetration of the most revolting cruelties upon the natives. It is claimed by Senator Morgan that every concession the grants has been without authority, and his resolution is designed to bring out this fact for the world.

OHIO LEADS IN CHILD LABOR LAWS

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 8.—State Shop and Building Inspector J. H. Morgan filed his annual report for 1906 with Governor Harris to-day. In child labor legislation he says that Ohio leads the States. There were 211 prosecutions for the violation of these laws during the year, resulting in fines aggregating $4,417.

The inspector is so gratified with the cooperation of employers in giving work to children where the parents are poor and must have the children's wages. Instead he suggests a school pension law, by which, in such cases, the equivalent of the child's wages may be paid out of public treasury for the parents' support, and the child sent to school, instead of to a factory to work.

CONGO GRANTS TO MILLIONAIRES

King Leopold's Concessions to Ryan, Aldrich, Rockefeller, Morgan and Harriman.

BY WALTER EDWARD HARRIS.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 8.—The concession granted Thomas P. Ryan, Nelson W. Aldrich, Senator from Rhode Island, and Republican leader of the United States Senate; William Rockefeller, Pierpont Morgan, and E. H. Harriman by King Leopold to gather rubber in the Congo Free State, is likely to become a matter of vast international concern.

The stress of the closing hours of Congress caused many matters of an ephemeral nature to overshadow others being a resolution reported from the Senate Committee on Foreign Affairs for Senator Morgan.

This resolution requests the President of the United States to inform the Senate of the nature of the concession, and to ascertain whether the concession has any information as to any concession from King Leopold of Belgium, as sovereign of the Free State, to any company or individual, or to any citizens of the United States for the gathering of India rubber within the territory of the Free State of the Congo, located at the mouth of the Kasai River or along its banks, or to any concession from King Leopold, south of the junction with the Congo River, south of the Free State of the Congo.

Request is made in the resolutions for the names and all other available information regarding any such concessions to Americans.

Enlightened Christian civilization has been greatly shocked by the horrible outrages which have been inflicted upon a million of benighted Africans living in the Congo Free State and the fact that while most awful atrocities have been committed with knowledge and under the authority of the Belgian monarch, American citizens have lent themselves for purely mercenary motives to the continuance of a most frightful condition of affairs in this bright country.

SETTLING BASINS FILLED TO LEVEL

Each Contains About 85,000,000 Gallons of James River Water.

TEST VERY SATISFACTORY

The two gigantic settling basins forming the major part of the city's clear water plant are now full of water for the first time. Each contains about 85,000,000 gallons, drawn from the James River directly through a sluice in the western end of the basins. The two basins are filled to the level of the dam just above. One of them is of slightly greater capacity than the other, but approximately they are 85,000,000 gallons each. These two basins have earth bottoms and the sides are heavy earth embankments ripped with many tons of crushed stone.

Superintendent Charles E. Bolling has had the basins filled as a test of the seepage, if any, and to ascertain the accuracy of his calculations as to the water level and other details. In addition to filling the two large basins, he has had about two feet of water turned into the two smaller or coagulating basins at the east end of the plant.

This is done chiefly to wash the basins out thoroughly, they being capable of draining by means of a sluice in the bottom at the east end.

Mr. Bolling stated yesterday that owing to unavoidable delay in the construction of the flume or artificial channel through which the clear water is to be conveyed to the New Pump-House, that portion of the work will probably not be completed before July. This is tedious work, the flume being constructed of reinforced concrete, which must be built in sections by cofferdams, thus making progress very slow. The flume is a circular pipe six feet in diameter.

The test of the basins is proving entirely satisfactory, and is vindicating the superintendent's calculations and predictions in every way, just as his estimate of cost of a plant has been verified by the results.
